The Forum Series represents the finest quality entry level drumset available. Years of manufacturing experience and proven design technology, producing some of today's most widely accepted professional percussion instruments, has been utilized to produce an entry level drumset good enough to bear the Pearl logo. By using the same shell composition as our popular Export and Export Pro Series drums, the Forum Series produces a warm distinctive tonal quality that sets it apart from all other entry level kits. Outstanding projection, excellent attack, and a lasting rich sustain can all be attributed to its fine selected wood shell featuring multiple mahogany plys. Forum's durable exterior covering is available in three beautiful colors. New low-mass tension lugs, newly designed tom holders, and new bass drum spurs enhance the overall look and function of the Forum Series. The five piece Forum drumset features a 16"x22" bass drum, a 10"x12" tom, a 11"x13" tom and a 16"x16" floor tom. These sizes are the same as our Professional Series five piece kits. The new 6 1/2"x14" smooth finish chrome plated steel Forum snare drum features eight tension lugs for precise tuning and a dependable quick release snare strainer. Forum drumsets also come complete with our 680 series hardware line featuring one cymbal stand, our chain drive hi-hat stand, a fully adjustable snare stand and the new 680 bass drum pedal.

No other entry level drumset available delivers the quality, sound, dependability and professional styling of Forum. The Forum Series from Pearl. Feature packed, design proven, and fully warranted...The beginning drummer never had it so good.

The all new P-680 bass drum pedal offers quick, percise action.
